

Art for the Park

Friends of St.James' Park

Dealing with 'actual' clients with 'real' needs, requirements and deadlines is a challenging task, even for the seasoned professional. Here on the Illustration course at Solent we like to compliment studio based projects with live briefs that introduce students, within a supportive environment, to these high-pressure situations. 'Art for the Park' is an extremely successful example of this approach that demonstrates the creative ingenuity and virtuosity of an individual student combined with the entrepreneurial skills that need to be employed to make such an ambitious project happen.

I would like to thank the Friends of St. James Park for providing Illustration at Solent with the opportunity to produce this body of work and for their input and support during its production. I would also like to thank and congratulate Illustration student Sarah Silverstein for taking on the challenge and producing such a fantastic body of work.
